Elite Wide Receiver & Tight End Training

Former University of Texas Wide Receiver | Director of CAMP81TX

Coach Greg Timmons is a former University of Texas wide receiver with nearly a decade of coaching and athlete development experience. As Director of CAMP81TX, he is committed to helping young wide receivers build the technical skills, football IQ, athletic ability, and confidence needed to perform at a high level. His coaching philosophy emphasizes purposeful repetition, disciplined preparation, and attention to detail, ensuring every athlete develops into a complete receiver—not just someone who can run routes, but a dependable playmaker who understands the game and consistently performs under pressure.

"Train with Purpose. Learn with Intention. Develop with Structure."

Camp81TX is a high-intensity, training program based in the Houston area, focused on developing wide receivers and tight ends into disciplined, dominant, and technically sound athletes.

Why CAMP81TX?

Many wide receivers:

- Never learn how to defeat press coverage.
- Run routes without understanding leverage.
- Depend only on athletic ability.
- Struggle catching through contact.
- Never study coverage recognition.
- Lack confidence because they don't understand WHY they are running each route.

Our Mission

To develop complete wide receivers who dominate mentally, physically, and technically through structured coaching built on collegiate and professional standards.

MAKES CAMP81TX DIFFERENT?

Our Wide Receiver & Tight End development system focuses on building complete players—not just route running athletes.
